

Emergency Management Institute (EMI) Instructor Updates

June 8th from 10:00am-12:00pm ET

Presented by:

Jeffrey Hice, Supervisory Training Specialist, Preparedness Branch, EMI and Dr. Kelly E. Garrett, EMI, Director, Emergency Management Professional Program

Course Description: This 2 hour virtual seminar will provide information and allow opportunity for questions on EMI training and trainer resources. Topics will include an overview of EMI Curriculums offering Train the Trainer courses, Standards of Course Delivery, virtual delivery Lessons Learned, request procedures for indirect or virtual delivery that produces an EMI certificate, and how to become an EMI Instructor. The intended audience is current instructors and those interested in becoming instructors for EMI courses.

Speaker Bios:

Jeff Hice leads the development and delivery of ICS, ICS Position, Tribal and Critical Infrastructure training. He has contributed to development of National level FEMA doctrine and tools to include National Qualification System guides and tools and the revision of the NIMS Training Program. Prior to joining FEMA, Jeff served a career in the U.S. Army, where he gained experience in Emergency Management as a member of the WMD Civil Support Team program, and in response to numerous Disaster Declarations for floods, hurricanes, and winter storms.

Kelly Garrett leads a staff that provides oversight of the Basic, Advanced, Executive Academies, and the Public Information Officer Program. These programs include more than 4,200 students annually. A retired U. S. Army Reserve officer, Colonel Garrett served as a Faculty Instructor at the U. S. Army War College. Kelly received a Doctorate in Education from the University of Pennsylvania, and a graduate certificate in Homeland Security from the Harvard Kennedy School.