Jason Sirney
Witt O'Brien's

Jason has nearly 30 years of experience in local government emergency management preparedness and response, including as a first responder in both the fire service and law enforcement. He has spent the last four years helping Witt O'Brien's clients through management of AARs and other readiness and resilience planning, including managing and/or participating in COVID-19 After Action Reports (AARs). Jason's public service began as a first responder serving in the fire service and law enforcement for 13 years. For the following 15 years, Jason was a jurisdictional emergency manager responsible for the delivery of all aspects of emergency management for the City of Sacramento. He managed Emergency Operations Center (EOC) activations responding to floods, severe weather, civil unrest, infrastructure incidents, and other emergencies. He has previously served as a law enforcement officer and wildland firefighter, bringing experience responding to large complex incidents including earthquakes, civil unrest, weather-related incidents, and multiple large fires. Jason is an assessor with the Emergency Management Accreditation Program (EMAP), having participated in assessments across the country. He teaches emergency management and homeland security courses to government entities throughout the nation.
