

Eric Lobay

IAEM-Alberta Region Vice President

Eric is an Emergency Management Officer at Alberta Health Services in Edmonton. In his role, Eric works with regional hospitals to enhance resiliency and support emergency planning efforts. During high impact events, including the 2016 Fort McMurray wildfires and the 2019 wildfires in northwest Alberta, Eric has been deployed to support AHS' major incident response. He has a particular interest in CBRN/HazMat preparedness and is the Zone Lead for AHS' CBRN First Receiver Program. Prior to his current role, Eric worked in various capacities as an Advanced Care Paramedic including municipal, industrial, and air ambulance settings. He is a graduate of Philadelphia University's Disaster Medicine and Management Master's Degree program and holds a Bachelor of Commerce Degree from the University of Alberta. Eric is a Certified Emergency Manager and is honored to help support and grow the IAEM Alberta Region.
